Specification Amendment

Please replace the entire paragraph starting at line 7 on page 8 with the 10 following paragraph:

Described herein are exemplary implementations of the program-module updater (i.e., “exemplary program-module 15 updater”). A program module is a generic term for a section of computer-executable instructions. A hardware-specific program module is a generic label for a program module that is associated with a specific hardware device and it is generally intended to facilitate computer interaction with such device. An example of such a hardware-specific program modules is a device driver.
